

Nuclear Attraction to Valence Electrons

The nucleus is the most strongly attracted to its valence electron(s):

- Towards the top of the periodic table
- Towards the right of the periodic table